FRENZIED FINISH: Democrat John Kerry is cheered at a rally in Detroit as President Bush gives the thumbs up to supporters in Milwaukee. The candidates made a final push through a handful of swing states Monday in a last-ditch hunt for the votes that could break open a deadlocked race for the White House.

Bush, Kerry crisscross the country in final push for votes

MILWAUKEE | President Bush and Sen. John Kerry reached for the finish line Tuesday in a campaign for the ages, each claiming to be the strong, steady leader needed in a time of terrorism. "The world is watching," said the Democratic challenger in a race that defied safe prediction.

"This election comes down to who do you trust," Bush said as Air Force One carried him to a half-dozen states on a final full day of campaigning.

By election eve, uncounted millions of Americans had voted early in 32 states, including more than 1.8 million in Florida alone. Both campaigns primed Election Day turnout programs in battleground states from New Hampshire to Nevada.

Kerry made six stops in four states on Monday — two each in Ohio and Wisconsin — pledging to be an advocate for the middle class and those struggling to join it. Bush campaigned across five states before heading home to Texas to vote on Election Day.

After nearly eight months of head-to-head campaigning between the president and the Massachusetts senator, the final pre-election polls turned up tied — 49-49 in one CNN-USA Today-Gallup survey, with Ralph Nader

POLL TIMES

When to vote:

at 1 percent. Tight surveys in Florida as well as Ohio and other Midwestern states added to the uncertainty of the battle for 270 electoral votes.

With polls so tight, the biggest unknown was turnout.

Curtis Gans, director of the nonpartisan Committee for the Study of the American Electorate, estimated as many as 121 million voters would cast ballots, about 60 percent of those eligible. DAVID ESPO (AP)

JOB SEARCH

Padded Qualifications

A man was arrested and charged with hiding wood in his hair to meet the minimum height requirement for police officers. Maharashtra Public Service Commission officials in Mumbai, India, said Gajendra Kharatmal reached the 5-foot-3-inches mark exactly when he stood at the scale, Mid-Day reported Friday. An examiner said: "We asked him to stand there once again. The second time, we felt something hard hidden in his hair and discovered a piece of wood." He was arrested for cheating. "To get selected, he adopted this approach," a police spokesman said. (EXPRESS)

Time to Install Tiny 'Jared' Holograms

Police in Blacksburg, Va., arrested Virginia Tech student Ben Jackson and charged him with counterfeiting Subway sandwich shop "Sub Club" stamps on his computer, WSLS-TV reported. Investigators said he gave some stamps to his friend, fellow student David Covucci, charged with similar offenses.

The company said no one had ever been caught counterfeiting the stamps in a similar fashion. Police said they were impressed with the forgery's authenticity. (EXPRESS)

We Have Three Dogs: Fido, Spot and Fido

A Brazilian lawmaker wants to make it illegal to give pets names that are common among people. Congressman Reinaldo Santos e Silva proposed the law after psychologists suggested children get depressed when they learn they share their name with a pet, said Damarias Alves, a spokeswoman for Silva. "Names have importance," said Alves. The congressman "wants to challenge people's assumptions that it's acceptable to give animals human names," she said. If the law passes, signs noting the ban would be shown in pet stores and veterinary clinics. (AP)

Challengers Blocked From Ohio Polls

Two judges rule GOP watchers can't question eligibility of voters

CINCINNATI | Two federal judges Monday barred Republican Party representatives from challenging the eligibility of voters at polling places on Election Day.

U.S. District Judge Susan Dlott said that a black couple suing over such challenges would probably be able to prove them unconstitutional.

In a similar case in Akron, U.S. District Judge John Adams said it is up to regular poll workers to determine if voters are eligible.

In a related ruling in Newark, New Jersey, a federal judge said a Republican Party list challenging the registration of 23,000 voters in Ohio unfairly targeted minority voters, and violated a decades-old order prohibiting such tactics. The GOP had claimed many of the names were fraudulent.

In the Akron, Ohio ruling, the judge said people appointed as challengers cannot be at the polls for the sole purpose of challenging voters' qualifications.

Republicans wanted to put challengers in many polling places, citing the possibility of fraudulent voter registrations in the tossup state. Democrats argued that such challenges were aimed at intimidating black voters and suppressing Democratic turnout. The GOP said it appealed the first ruling and would do so in the second. (AP)

Lawyers Sent Out to Voting Sites

WASHINGTON | Republicans and Democrats went ahead with plans to dispatch thousands of lawyers to potential election trouble spots even as judges made last minute changes to voting rules in Ohio.

Partisan lawyers will join thousands of outside lawyers and neutral poll watchers on Tuesday, concentrating on Ohio, Florida and other critical states where the presidential race between President Bush and Sen. John Kerry is extremely close.

Also Monday, a network of Democratic trial attorneys and law professors threatened to sue poll watchers and poll challengers who intimidate or disenfranchise voters in battleground states.

At least a dozen law firms in three states have agreed to handle cases that arise on Tuesday, and law professors at several universities will act as advisers. (AP)

Justice Absent From Court

Rehnquist says he will work from home amid treatments for cancer

WASHINGTON | Chief Justice William H. Rehnquist revealed Monday that he is undergoing chemotherapy and radiation treatment for thyroid cancer, signs he has a grave form of the disease and probably will not return to the bench soon.

The election eve disclosure by the 80-year-old justice underscores the near certainty that the next president will make at least one appointment to the Supreme Court and probably more.

Rehnquist had planned to join his colleagues when they returned to hear arguments Monday after a two-week break. Instead he issued a statement from home about the treatment he's receiving. It said he plans to work from home.

Rehnquist did not disclose what type of thyroid cancer he has.

Dr. Ann M. Gillenwater of the University of Texas M.D. Anderson Cancer Center in Houston said the combination of chemotherapy and radiation is the usual treatment for anaplastic thyroid cancer, a fast-growing form that can kill quickly.

Rehnquist's statement was a more somber announcement than the one a week ago, when he first made public that he had been hospitalized for cancer treatment.

"According to my doctors, my plan to return to the office today was too optimistic," said Rehnquist, who spent a week in the hospital.

In his absence Monday, Justice John Paul Stevens presided over the court. Stevens said Rehnquist could still vote in cases being argued this week, after reviewing transcripts and briefs. GINA HOLLAND (AP)

Trapped Toddler Pulled From Well

FRISCO CITY, ALA. | After a tense 13 hours of prayer and digging, rescue workers pulled a 22-month-old boy to safety Monday morning from an abandoned well where he fell while playing in a vacant lot.

The boy, Jermere McMillan, was described as scratched and bruised but calm when brought out for jubilant family, friends and rescue workers.

The child, with his mother, Mica Wilson, was taken to a hospital in Mobile for a checkup. He was listed in good condition at the hospital, an upbeat ending to an ordeal that began around 4:30 p.m. Sunday when he fell into the well while playing with his older brother and sister. (AP)

American, 5 Others Kidnapped in Iraq

Hostage-takers strike in area of Baghdad previously targeted

BAGHDAD | Gunmen stormed the compound of a Saudi company in a fashionable Baghdad neighborhood Monday, seizing an American, a Nepalese and four Iraqis after a gunbattle in which a guard and one of the assailants were killed, police said.

The American, who was not identified, was the 12th U.S. citizen reported kidnapped or missing in Iraq. He was grabbed about 500 yards from the house where two Americans and a Briton were kidnapped last month. All three were beheaded.

The dramatic abduction occurred two days after the decapitated body of Japanese backpacker Shosei Koda was found in western Baghdad. The al Qaeda-affiliated movement of Abu Musab al-Zarqawi claimed responsibility for his kidnapping.

Elsewhere, gunmen assassinated the deputy governor of Baghdad while to the west of the capital U.S. troops clashed with Sunni insurgents in Ramadi, killing an Iraqi freelance television camera operator. MARIAM FAM (AP)

BE PREPARED: U.S. Marines train in an abandoned primary school outside Fallujah on Monday. American forces are preparing for a major assault on Fallujah in an effort to restore control to a swath of Sunni towns near Baghdad ahead of elections.

Iraqi President Criticizes Coalition

Al-Yawer says it's overreacting to Fallujah crisis

BAGHDAD | American artillery pounded suspected insurgent positions in Fallujah, and residents reported fresh air and artillery attacks there late Monday.

But Prime Minister Ayad Allawi came under new pressure, this time from Iraq's president, to forego an all-out American assault on Fallujah and other Sunni insurgent strongholds.

In an interview published Monday by the Kuwaiti daily Al-Qabas, interim President Ghazi al-Yawer, a Sunni, said he disagreed "with those who believe a military attack is necessary."

"The way the coalition is managing the crisis is wrong," al-Yawer said. "It is as if someone shot his horse in the head to kill a fly that landed on it."

Allawi, a Shiite Muslim, has given no deadline for an attack on Fallujah but has insisted that the city must hand over foreign fighters and permit government forces to assume responsibility for law and order. (AP)

Court Rules Milosevic Can Defend Himself

THE HAGUE, NETHERLANDS | Slobodan Milosevic can once again lead his own defense at the U.N. war crimes tribunal but must accept a standby lawyer in case he becomes too ill to continue, appeals judges ruled Monday.

The compromise decision represents a rare courtroom victory for the former Yugoslav president and promises to break an impasse in his 33-month-old trial on charges of war crimes, including genocide.

Trial judges at the court in The Hague, Netherlands, imposed a defense lawyer against Milosevic's will in September after independent doctors said the 63-year-old defendant could be at risk of a heart attack.

Milosevic had defended himself for 2½ years and cross-examined hundreds of prosecution witnesses, but his trial was delayed frequently when he was ill with flu or had dangerously high blood pressure.

Milosevic is charged with more than 60 counts of war crimes for his role during the breakup of Yugoslavia in the 1990s. (AP)

Chinese Police Out In Force After Burst Of Ethnic Violence

LANGCHENGANG, CHINA | Thousands of police patrolled a tense central Chinese town Monday after street fights between members of the country's main ethnic group and a Muslim minority killed seven people and injured 42, the government and residents said.

As many as 5,000 people fought during weekend violence between Hui Muslims and members of the Han ethnic majority, according to residents interviewed by phone.

Eighteen people were arrested, the government said Monday in its first official word on the fighting. The statement didn't mention the ethnicities of the rioters.

Hui are descended from ethnic Chinese who converted to Islam generations ago. Han Chinese make up more than 90 percent of China's 1.3 billion people.

China suffers occasional ethnic tensions, though the level of violence isn't clear because the communist government routinely suppresses reports of social conflict. (AP)

Teen Bomber Kills 3 in Israel

Arafat condemns latest suicide attack from Paris hospital bed

TEL AVIV, ISRAEL | A 16-year-old Palestinian laden with explosives blew himself up Monday in a crowded outdoor market in Tel Aviv, killing three Israelis and wounding 32.

The attack tested Israel's promise to show restraint during the absence of the ailing Yasser Arafat. Palestinian leaders — including Arafat — immediately condemned the attack, the first since a Sept. 22 bombing in Jerusalem.

From a hospital near Paris, Arafat "appealed to all Palestinian factions to commit to avoid harming all Israeli civilians," spokesman Nabil Abu Rdenah said. Arafat, 75, has been in France since Friday for treatment of an unknown disease.

The blast occurred shortly before noon when the suicide attacker detonated an 11-pound bomb in the Carmel market. The attack was the 116th suicide bombing since the outbreak of Israeli-Palestinian fighting in 2000. In all, 493 Israelis have been killed in such attacks.

The Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine claimed responsibility, identifying the assailant as Eli Amer Alfar, from a refugee camp in the West Bank.

Alfar was among the youngest Palestinian suicide bombers, and his parents lashed out at the militants who recruited him.

"It's immoral to send someone so young," said Samir Abdullah, 45, Alfar's mother. "They should have sent an adult who understands the meaning of his deeds."

The blast came at a time of growing concern about instability during Arafat's absence. Militants appeared to be signaling they are in charge, not Arafat's stand-ins, who have been trying to convey a sense of normalcy. GAVIN RABINOWITZ (AP)

Continent Shifts Left as Socialist Wins in Uruguay

MONTEVIDEO, URUGUAY | Uruguay strengthened South America's political tilt to the left, electing the country's first leftist president as part of a regional shift by voters disenchanted by U.S.-backed free-market policies.

Uruguay's Electoral Court said Monday that with 99 percent of the ballots counted, socialist Tabare Vazquez won 50.2 percent of the vote. Municipal elections also reaped gains for left-leaning governments in Venezuela and Chile.

In Uruguay, Vazquez' victory in Sunday's vote highlighted a dramatic change for a staunch U.S. ally. During the five-year rule of outgoing centrist President Jorge Batlle, relations with the United States had blossomed at a time

No Clear Winner In Ukrainian Vote

KIEV, UKRAINE | Ukraine's furiously contested presidential election ended in a dead heat Monday, forcing a runoff between pro-Russian Prime Minister Viktor Yanukovich and opposition leader Viktor Yushchenko.

The runoff, set for Nov. 21, prolongs a campaign that has been overshadowed by worries over irregularities. The United States had warned it may take punitive action if the voting was marred by irregularities. Ukraine, which has a brigade of troops in Iraq, is a top recipient of U.S. aid. (AP)

Democrats Set
To Carry District

Kerry, Barry expected to be big winners in Washington election

WASHINGTON | When voters in the nation's capital head to the polls Tuesday they are expected to deliver the District's three electoral votes to a Democrat, John Kerry, for the 11th consecutive time. They are also expected to return a legendary politician to the D.C. Council.

By Tuesday night, former four-term mayor Marion Barry is expected to be elected to the Ward 8 seat. Barry — who served six months on a federal drug conviction after being videotaped smoking crack cocaine in 1990 — won a decisive primary victory in September.

"I'm not taking anything for granted. I know I've got the election won, but I need to see people and people need to see me," Barry, 68, said Monday.

"For us in D.C. voting is mandatory. Because we're trying to get full voting rights in the Congress, we need to set a good example for ourselves and for the Congress," said Del. Eleanor Holmes Norton, D-D.C., who is expected to easily turn back a GOP challenger to win an eighth term. (AP)

Worms Forecast
A Mild Winter

HAGERSTOWN, MD. | People bugged by cold, snowy weather will get a break this winter, the woolly bears predict.

The black-and-brown markings on about 100 caterpillars inspected by the staff of J. Gruber's Hagerstown Town and Country Almanack indicate the first half of winter in the Middle Atlantic states will be merely average while the second half will be more like spring, Gerald W. Spessard, the publication's business manager said Monday.

According to folklore, the width of the black bands at either end of the caterpillars correspond to the severity of the coming winter.

Spessard said the front bands on this year's crop were of normal width, indicating an average early season, while the rear bands were unusually narrow. (AP)

Md. Fund Manager Headed to Prison

BALTIMORE | Nathan Chapman Jr., a former money fund manager, was sentenced to 7½ years in prison Monday and ordered to pay $5 million restitution for defrauding the state retirement system and looting his own investment company.

William Martin, Chapman's attorney, said he filed a notice of appeal with the 4th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Richmond.

The 46-year-old was found guilty of 23 counts relating to his use of state retirement system funds to revive the stock price of his sagging online investment company.

The $29 billion retirement system, which is responsible for the pensions of more than 250,000 teachers, police officers, firefighters and other government workers, lost nearly $5 million in the transactions. (AP)

Anacostia Gets A Failing Grade

Foundation calls for sewer-system upgrade to polluted D.C. river

WASHINGTON | Human waste, trash and chemicals continue to pollute the Anacostia River, and the Chesapeake Bay Foundation gave the waterway a failing grade Monday, calling for more government action to clean it up.

The District's antiquated sewer system, part of which combines rainwater and sanitary sewage, routinely overflows into the Anacostia at 19 different points whenever there is significant rainfall.

Mayor Anthony Williams was in talks Monday with the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers regarding funding for the sewer overhaul. The Anacostia is one of eight rivers targeted by the Environmental Protection Agency's National Urban River Restoration Initiative that will help coordinate federal funding for cleanup efforts.

Bay foundation officials said upgrading the sewer system will cost more than $1 billion.

While the Anacostia got a grade of only 17 on a 100-point scale Monday, the foundation has set the goal of raising the river's rating to a score of 40 by the year 2020, making it safe for fishing and swimming. (AP)

Gentleman Bandit To Serve 10 Years

WASHINGTON | The downtown bank robber known as the "Gentleman Bandit" was sentenced Monday to 10 years in prison.

Kevin Brown, 52, of Forestville, Md., was found guilty in May of bank robbery and firearms charges in the August 2003 hold-up of a SunTrust bank at 20th and K Streets N.W. But investigators believe he fits the description of a well-dressed robber who struck several downtown banks starting in 1995, then got away by blending into the crowd.

Brown will serve 10 years for bank robbery concurrently with five years on the firearms charges. (AP)

Latest Economic Data a Mixed Bag

On election eve, stats fail to break clearly for either Bush or Kerry

NEW YORK | Consumer spending rebounded in September while manufacturing activity expanded in October, though at a slower pace than the previous month, providing further evidence of continued but moderating economic growth on the eve of the presidential election.

Overall, those and other reports released Monday painted a picture of an economy that was still expanding but not as fast as in the summer. Given the somewhat mixed reading, the reports gave little new information to voters trying to make up their minds about how the economy has been faring under President Bush, said Ethan Harris, the chief economist at Lehman Bros.

“Right or wrong, the incumbent gets credit or blame for the economy,” Harris said. “But the economy isn’t breaking clearly for either candidate.”

The Institute for Supply Management reported that its index for manufacturing activity continued to indicate growth in October, though at a slower pace. The index came in at 56.8, below the reading of 58.5 recorded in September.

The Commerce Department reported that spending by consumers expanded at a robust rate of 0.6 percent in September as purchases of big-ticket items such as cars soared.

Consumer spending is closely watched by economists since it makes up two-thirds of economic activity. However, Harris said one key reason the September number was higher was that automakers brought back aggressive incentives for car buyers since they were “desperate” to clear out mounting inventories. Merck Shares Slide on Vioxx Report

WHITEHOUSE STATION, N.J. | Shares of Merck & Co. plunged more than 10 percent Monday after a media report said that documents show the pharmaceutical giant hid or denied evidence for years that its blockbuster arthritis drug Vioxx causes heart problems.

Merck pulled the arthritis and acute pain drug from the market worldwide on Sept. 30, saying it was acting in patients’ best interest. Vioxx has been taken by about 20 million Americans and had produced 11 percent of Merck’s total revenues.

Hundreds of lawsuits have been filed against Merck over Vioxx.

Merck shares were down $3.03, or 9.7 percent, to close at $28.28 on the New York Stock Exchange after The Wall Street Journal reported that internal e-mails and marketing materials show the company knew as far back as 2000 that Vioxx was linked to an increased risk of heart attack. (AP)

Gibbs Is Still Sticking With Brunell

Redskins coach disputes 'inconsistent' penalty

REDSKINS | A review of the tape and a chance to soak in the angry chants of fans didn't change Joe Gibbs' mind one bit: He still thinks his Washington Redskins got robbed of an apparent touchdown pass, and he still thinks Mark Brunell should be his quarterback.

Gibbs was still rankled over an illegal motion call on James Thrash that negated a 43-yard touchdown pass to Clinton Portis in the fourth quarter of Sunday's 28-14 loss to Green Bay. The touchdown would have given the Redskins a one-point lead with 2:35 remaining.

"I thought we made the play to win the game. Really and truly we did make the play to win the game," Gibbs said Monday. "But it's just that up here you get very inconsistent stuff called, and that was an inconsistent call."

Gibbs said his team did the same maneuver three other times in the game without being flagged, and that he will be sending tapes to the league office for an explanation.

Gibbs might find it harder to put aside the growing calls for him to end his loyalty to Brunell and give Patrick Ramsey a chance to revive the struggling offense. Fans were booing Brunell and chanting Ramsey's name Sunday.

"I felt very comfortable with what was going on as far as Mark's play. Had I made that change in the first half, then we would've missed those plays in the second half that really should've given us the win. He made some great plays down the stretch," Gibbs said.

But while endorsing Brunell, Gibbs took an unintentional swipe at the quarterback. "What's hurt us is we haven't had the ability to get in the end zone from a long ways out," he said. JOSEPH WHITE (AP)

Wizards Lock Up Haywood

Center gets extension; Brown, Blake, Thomas placed on injured list

WIZARDS | Center Brendan Haywood signed a contract extension Monday with the Washington Wizards, who also placed Kwame Brown, Etan Thomas and Steve Blake on the injured list.

Haywood signed a five-year extension that will keep him under contract through the 2009-10 season, according to a team source who spoke on condition of anonymity.

"This is a great opportunity for me to continue to work with my teammates and coaches and grow with this team," Haywood said. "I feel like the franchise is going in the right direction and I'm excited to be a part of it."

Haywood averaged 7 points, 5 rebounds and a team-high 1.3 blocks last season, his third with the Wizards. He played in 77 games and started 59.

Brown is recovering from a broken bone in his foot, Blake is recovering from ankle surgery, and Thomas has an abdominal injury. All are expected to miss at least the first two weeks of the season.

In addition, Haywood, Gilbert Arenas, Larry Hughes and Anthony Peeler are all suspended for various reasons for Wednesday's opener at Memphis, leaving the team with just eight available players for the game.

NBA Is Left Without Marquee Team

BASKETBALL | Kobe Bryant and Shaquille O'Neal agree on one thing: The NBA's new marquee team is ... drum roll, please ...

"It'd have to be Detroit, wouldn't it?" Bryant said.

"I don't know. I'd probably have to say the Pistons," offered O'Neal.

The NBA is entering unfamiliar territory in its first season following the breakup of the Los Angeles Lakers, the NBA's top draw for the past half-decade.

With O'Neal in Miami, coach Phil Jackson in semi-retirement and Bryant left in L.A., there's a void.

Sure, the Pistons are the defending champions. But they're not the ones headlining the league's Christmas doubleheader. The big attraction is the first meeting between Shaq and Kobe.

Detroit, which became the first team in 25 years to win the title without a true superstar, returns almost the same exact lineup.

The formula of surrounding one or two superstars with role players no longer sits unchallenged as the best way for teams to build.

But that doesn't mean the old recipe is dead. The Pistons might have been a fluke. "They were a really true team ... and they happened to be in the right place at the right time and maybe catch the Lakers when they were at a point where they were a little off," said Indiana coach Rick Carlisle. #### Huskies' Coach to Step Down After Losing Season

Washington coach Keith Gilbertson will step down at the end of the season, ending a difficult two years as Rick Neuheisel's replacement. The Huskies lost 31-6 at Oregon on Saturday, dropping to 1-7 overall and 0-5 in the Pac-10. It's the worst season in 35 years for a school that shared the 1991 national title. The 56-year-old Gilbertson, a Washington native, is 7-13 in his second season at Washington. "I want to see this program succeed and get rolling again. Whatever I can do to help, I'll do," he said. (AP)

Adu Is a Finalist For Rookie Award

After slow start to the season, 15-year-old is recognized by MLS

SOCCER | It didn't take long for Major League Soccer to put Freddy Adu in a position to win an award.

The 15-year-old phenom, who played in all 30 of D.C. United's regular season games this year, was named one of three finalists for the MLS Gatorade of the Year Award.

The winner will be announced before the MLS Cup — the league's championship match — is played on Nov. 14 in Los Angeles.

This is the second time Adu has been singled out by the league. He was named to the All-Star Game in Washington, D.C., as a commissioner's pick this summer.

After struggling early in his first professional season, Adu improved as a reserve player. He finished with five goals, including a game-winning shot against the MetroStars on Oct. 2.

Freddy Adu and D.C. United are in position to return to the MLS Cup.

As Adu has improved, so has D.C. United. The team will play the New England Revolution on Saturday in the Eastern Conference Final. The winner moves on to the MLS Cup. (EXPRESS)

Autopsy: Caminiti Died of Overdose

BASEBALL | A drug overdose killed former National League MVP Ken Caminiti, who admitted using steroids as a player and tested positive for cocaine in the days before he died.

Coronary artery disease and an enlarged heart were listed as contributing factors in the death of Caminiti, Grace Bruggess, spokeswoman for the New York City Medical Examiner, said Monday. She said the death had been ruled an accident. The 15-year major league veteran, who won the NL MVP award in 1996, admitted in a Houston court just days before he died that he had tested positive for cocaine. Caminiti, 41, died Oct. 10 in the Bronx. (AP)

Vegan CEOs hope to change employees' lifestyles with lunch

DIET | Telephone company CEO Norm Mason, a vegan, knew what he wanted at his Roanoke, Va., company cafeteria.

Soy steaks and soy sloppy joes, veggie burgers, nachos and other meatless, eggless, butter-free delicacies are cooked daily using textured vegetable protein.

And it's all free.

Mason said he created the "Vegeteria" four years ago for the well-being of his employees of Cat Communications International. He's giving them all the fresh vegetables, meat substitutes, cakes and drinks they could ever want.

Bruce Friedrich, a spokesman for People for the Ethical Treatment of Animals, said there is a growing number of vegetarian and vegan CEOs, including Steve Jobs of Apple Computers Inc., Michael Eisner from Walt Disney Co., John Mackey of Whole Foods Market Inc. and Bill Ford of Ford Motor Co., who make it easier for employees to eat meat-free.

"They've certainly increased exponentially the vegan offerings in their cafeterias," Friedrich said.

By providing free vegetarian lunches and stocking the room with pamphlets about vegetarianism, Mason hopes to nudge his employees to a different lifestyle.

It isn't working very quickly.

"They have this thing called 'soy-berry steak' instead of Salisbury steak," said Michaela Goodman, a 19-year-old customer service staffer. "It just didn't seem right."

Leaving a Bitter Taste in Your Waist

COULD A SENSITIVE PALATE be the key to a svelte figure? Researchers at Rutgers University found that "super tasters," people most sensitive to bitter tastes, were 20 percent thinner than "nontasters." "Nontasters tend to like foods that are fattier, sweeter, hotter and more bitter," Beverly Tepper, a professor of food science at Rutgers, said Thursday. "If nontasters pursue this kind of dietary pattern over time ... this would lead to higher body weight." LINDA A. JOHNSON (AP)

Brides & Prejudice

Ten people move to a country house and start getting very polite

PERIOD PIECE | What kind of reality dating show is right for PBS? One with impeccable manners, of course, and a British accent.

Make it a period piece, and it's a perfect match.

"Regency House Party" lacks hot tubs, a glitzy mansion or contemporary canoodling. But it offers an elegant country estate, bare-knuckle boxing and a secret nighttime rendezvous.

"Regency House Party," airing at 10 p.m. on four Wednesdays starting tomorrow night, gathers 10 single men and women in an English country manor and asks them to squeeze their 21st-century psyches and behavior into an alien society for two months.

They act as characters of the time: A dot-com entrepreneur becomes a naval captain, a hairdresser plays an army officer, a countess is a countess. The house guests are to seek the best match possible — which is to say the most financially and socially advantageous one.

The show is playful but not frivolous, said Jody Sheff, executive producer for Thirteen/WNET New York. "If you were a woman or a man in the early 19th century, who you married and how you married was going to determine your entire life." As each guest arrives at Kentchurch Court, they're given booklets containing rules of behavior. These are not suggestions.

TO THE MANNER MADE: Fiona Rogers and Gorell Barnes, host and hostess of the party, oversee the young folks' leisurely days and witness their romantic travails.

"A man has no right to take a lady's hand till it is offered. He has even less right to pinch or retain it. A young lady gives her hand, but does not shake a gentleman's, unless she is his friend."

That's for starters.

Women are instructed to remain within the house, perhaps trimming bonnets or simply beautifying themselves for dinner in revealing dresses, while men ride, hunt, gamble and in general cut loose.

When someone asked the countess, "What's it like?," Sheff noted, the character answered, "Well, we get little notes at the beginning of the day saying, 'The kitten will be in boudoir for the ladies to play with.'"

Their real job is to land a spouse and quickly.

The competition heats up when a rich, beautiful heiress enters the picture. That she is black is historically accurate, according to the series.

"Regency Britain hardly embraced racial equality but it had a healthy respect for money, and wealthy plantation owners and their nonwhite children were admitted into society and often considered a great social catch," the narrator says as Miss Tanya Samuel is introduced.

"It's nice to be able to enter into a house of affluence ... and not be a maid or a slave," Samuel, the London fashion designer playing the heiress, remarks in the show.

Stepping Into Darin's Shiny Shoes

PLAYING A PART | The weight of the Bobby Darin biopic "Beyond the Sea" rests greatly on Kevin Spacey's shoulders. Not only did the Academy Award-winning actor star, direct and co-produce the movie, he also sang Darin's songs in the film and on the soundtrack.

ATCO/Rhino Records will release the "Beyond the Sea" companion album Nov. 23. (The movie opens Dec. 29.) The 18 songs on the soundtrack include "Mack the Knife," "Dream Lover," "Splish Splash," "Hello Young Lovers," "Once Upon a Time," "Simple Song of Freedom" and the title track.

Spacey plays entertainer Darin, who died in 1973 at the age of 37 after having open-heart surgery.

Spacey swings as the late entertainer.

The film tells the story of Darin's difficult childhood, suffering from the life-threatening rheumatic fever that permanently damaged his heart, to his ups and downs in show business as a multifaceted entertainer.

As for recording Darin's songs, Spacey said, "I honor Bobby's talent, but I tried not to do a slavish imitation. I might have been the vehicle, but Bobby was the driver."

Puerto Rico's Brashest Voice

PERSONALITY | Tego Calderon is big in New York and Miami, huge in Latin America. And in his native Puerto Rico — forget about it. Calderon is king of "reggaeton," a rebellious new style of Latin music composed of rap and dancehall reggae with a Latin twist. His political messages, inventive profanity and drug references have enraged some listeners.

Define reggaeton.

Reggaeton is the new way the youth here [in Puerto Rico] express themselves, mainly it was a form of expression among the poor.

Has salsa lost flavor?

Young listeners have always listened to music that their parents oppose. We are the [new] rebels, but salsa is irreplaceable.

Why is reggaeton criticized?

Because we were coming from the underground, and our message was not so responsible. In the beginning nobody was listening to us; [then] everyone was listening. I think there was also prejudice: We represent the undesirable.

Why is your music so popular?

Most rap singers came out [in

Is there a language barrier?

I have never said this before, but what has made it easier to cross over is my skin color. Black people understand that we are fighting the same war, the only thing that is different is the language.

Drink Early & Often

PARTY PEOPLE | Only in Washington does nightlife grind to a halt during presidential debates. And only in Washington do folks think that watching election results on big screens constitutes a party. No wonder the rest of the country thinks we're dorks. That said, here are some of the best election night parties around town. Most won't charge a cover, and some will stay open "as long as it takes." Good luck!

9:30 Club

WHFS and Rock the Vote sponsor a party hosted by Poem-Cees and featuring the returns on a big screen, a special DJ set by Bob Mould, plus a performance by "special guests." 815 V St. NW; $12, VIP seats, $25; 202-265-0930.

The booze display at Andale may not be big enough to get you through.

pool tables for killing time until those West Coast polls close. 1330 19th St. NW; 202-331-7665.

Andale

For only $5, sample either a Bushrita or a Kerryrita. In addition, the restaurant is extending its popular happy hour from 4:30 to close. 401 7th St. NW; 202-783-3133.

Details for the retro pool lounge's "Red, White and Blue" party are still being worked out, but it will include $2 Pabst Blue Ribbon and large flat-screen televisions. North Moore Street and Lee Highway, Arlington; 703-465-7675.

Hawk and Dove

The venerable Capitol Hill tavern has five rooms, and each will show a different network's election night coverage. The Hawk is also hosting a battle of the beers: (Massachusetts) Samuel Adams vs. (Texas) Shiner Bock. 329 Pennsylvania Ave. SE; 202-543-3300.

La Tasca

The Clarendon and Chinatown branches of the tapas chain reward anyone who shows up wearing an "I Voted" sticker: a free tortilla Americana, which can be washed down with a $2.50 glass of red, white and blue sangria. 722 7th St. NW; 202-347-9190; 2900 Wilson Blvd., Arlington; 703-812-9120.

When Pixels Attack

CONTROVERSY | Get some earplugs: "Grand Theft Auto: San Andreas" is out, and the sound from cash registers ringing up copies of the video game could be deafening. Then again, so could the noise from the game's critics.

After all, that's been the story of the Grand Theft Auto series, which has sold 32 million copies worldwide since its 1998 debut and has generated its fair share of controversy. Expect the same from "GTA: San Andreas," which some analysts predict could eventually sell as many as 15 million copies for the Sony PlayStation 2.

"GTA: San Andreas" allows players to navigate an entire state, including three fictional cities. Where "GTA: Vice City" (2002) patterned itself on the 1980s TV show "Miami Vice" and the movie "Scarface," "San Andreas" takes place in the early '90s and focuses on the character Carl Johnson, who returns to his Los Angeles-like home city after his mother's murder but ends up fleeing when he's framed for killing someone.

The criticism that the Grand

FINDING FAULT: "GTA: San Andreas" has murder, vengeance and graphics.

Theft Auto series has faced is reminiscent of what gangster movies of the 1930s and 1950s-era comic books went through, said Gerard Jones, author of the book "Men of Tomorrow," which chronicles the rise of the comic-book industry.

The fuss over violent video games stems from "adult anxiety" over a "new medium that's something parents didn't grow up on but something their kids are crazy about."

Television

START STRETCHING: CBS is gearing up for the next "Amazing Race." The network has revealed the new couples—including an ex-CIA agent and his daughter, and married pro wrestlers—who'll compete on the Phil Keoghan-hosted series in November.

None of the Above

Register a protest against boring election coverage

CHOOSE WISELY | Hey, it's election night. By all indications it's going to be a long one until a winner is decided. So if you'd rather not watch Dan, Tom, Peter, et al. juggle red and blue states all night, here are a few viewing options appropriate for the night:

DARK VICTORY (8 p.m., TCM) The title of this Bette Davis classic puts us in mind of what the losing side undoubtedly accuses the winners of engineering.

CASTLE ROCK ENTERTAINMENT/AP

POWER PLAYER: Forget foreign policy — “The American President” is in love.

THE AMERICAN PRESIDENT (8 p.m., FX) In this 1995 comedy written by Aaron Sorkin, Michael Douglas plays the widowed chief executive wooing a lobbyist (Annette Bening).

MAIL TO THE CHIEF (8 p.m., Disney)
A 2000 comedy in which a teen builds the image of the president (Randy Quaid) online.

HITLER: TYRANT OF TERROR and STALIN: MAN OF STEEL (8 & 10 p.m., History)
Don't like Bush or Kerry? These documentaries remind us that some folks never even had any choice.

THE GODFATHER (8 p.m., AMC)
Object lesson in how power is really exercised.

GROUNDHOG DAY (8 p.m., Encore) Especially relevant if we're going to relive Election Night 2000 all over. ANDY EDELSTEIN (NEWSDAY)

ON TV TONIGHT

COKIE OR KEANU?

Everybody expects ELECTION COVERAGE (7 p.m., ABC, CBS, NBC, Fox, CNN, Fox News, MSNBC; 10 p.m., PBS) to dominate primetime and beyond. Arguably the most cynically titled election counter-programming choice is MUCH ABOUT NOTHING (8 p.m., Flix), the 1993 Shakespeare comedy adaptation. Who can resist Keanu Reeves uttering dialogue in iambic pentameter?

TURN OFF TV, PICK UP TV BOOK

According to PLANET SIMPSON by Chris Turner (Da Capo Press, 2004), the Fox cartoon comedy is a window on contemporary society. Turner's encyclopedic knowledge of the cartoon provides much-needed (and often hilarious) ballast to his sprawling tome.

MUSIC IS A WEAPON

ADULT SWIM (11 p.m., Cartoon Network)
On "Harvey Birdman, Attorney at Law," Quick Draw McGraw attempts to put the El Kabong on the Dalton gang with his trusty guitar. Outraged, McGraw turns to Harvey to defend his constitutional right to keep and bear guitars.

THE RETURN OF CHAD

Jon Stewart anchors ELECTION NIGHT 2004: PRELUDE TO A RECOUNT (10 p.m., Comedy Central). Guests include the Rev. Al Sharpton and former Massachusetts Gov. William Weld. KEVIN MCDONOUGH (UNITED FEATURE SYNDICATE)

It's time to get dirty as a brutal biking hybrid sport takes off

Roxy Cate finished a 45-minute cyclocross race: furiously pedaling through mucky turns and along rain-soaked grassy straightaways, running up a nearly vertical hill with her bike over her shoulder, and leaping with it over wooden barriers.

She's exhausted. She's covered with mud. She's drenched.

She's got cyclocross fever.

"We can still get out there and race," she said of middle-age women. "It's an investment in our health."

Cate was among enthusiastic cyclists on a rainy Sunday at races west of Portland.

The cyclocross season runs into December. In the Pacific Northwest it coincides with the start of the rainy season. Races are mudbaths. That's not a deterrent among racers.

"It takes a special kind of person to enjoy the abuse," said Mike Geraci, a 39-year-old cyclocross racer in Jackson, Wyo.

Cyclocross, invented in Europe as a way for cyclists to stay fit through the winter, is a cross between two kinds of cycling. The bikes have lightweight road bike-style frames, but mountain-style tires and brakes.

The courses are a blend of road and mountain bike riding, with straightaways on pavement and grass, tight turns, steep hills and wooden barriers. There is a fair amount of running involved — up the steep hills and over the barriers.

Riders race in categories based on ability and experience. They are timed. The fastest wins.

The number of cyclists registered for cyclocross races sanctioned by the USA Cycling organization has more than quadrupled over the past several years.

The season's first race was held in early October just east of Portland. Among the riders were 13-year-old Kayla Woolcock and Kenny Bossen, 15.

What do they like best about cyclocross? "Getting dirty," Kayla said.

"Cyclocross is the best," Bossen chimed in. "There are barriers. It's off-road. And there's mud." TERRENCE PETTY (AP)

Personal Tech

Cell Phone 411

Post personal technology columnist ROB PEGORARO was online Monday to discuss his Guide to Wireless Phone Plans | washingtonpost.com/liveonline

Do any cell phone companies besides Verizon have a viable plan to make cell phones usable in the subway in the coming year?

In the coming year? None. Putting wiring into tunnels that are filled with trains going 40 or 50 mph, 21 hours out of every day isn't a quick process. If somebody started putting in new wiring today, you might see results in 18 months.

I'm interested in international wireless calling plans that won't break my budget. What options exist?

The cheapest option seems to be getting prepaid service overseas, unless you're overseas often enough to make getting a second calling plan there worthwhile. The roaming fees you'd pay on a U.S. plan are just too high for anything but emergency use.

Aren't pre-paid plans just a rip-off and a penalty for not having a contract? My teenager had a pre-paid phone that cost her three times as much as my one-year contract.

Yes, that's the downside of prepaid service. If you're not disciplined in your use, you're going to pay more for a given bucket of minutes than you would with a regular contract.

Will the AT&T-Cingular merger improve AT&T's service in the area?

It should. Cingular customers get to use AT&T's signal for free, and vice versa. The effect should be to fill in some gaps.

I've had AT&T Wireless service for years. Recently I switched from a standard digital to a GSM phone and now I'm having problems picking up a signal in places I used to have some service, such as in underground segments of the Metro.

Might this be fixed with the merger?

AT&T's phones, like Cingular's, are now GSM-only. That means they can't work in the subway, where older AT&T phones — with analog support — could roam on Verizon's signal. The Cingular deal doesn't help you out, I'm afraid.

Williams Neglects Residents

MAYOR WILLIAMS AND all of his supporters should be ashamed at their inability to put human interests before corporate dividends and entertainment. The gentrification of Washington is heartbreaking, but seems in line with a general trend, which seems to have support in Mayor Williams' government. Many people have been displaced and the working poor have nowhere to turn for support. To waste room in Express' letters section on Monday defending a mayor who is proposing to spend more than $400 million on a stadium for entertainment is an insult. He has proven he is not going to represent native Washingtonians, low-to moderate-income earners or any other group besides the elite.

UPDATES

Brandy Back in News After Faking Marriage

BRANDY has left longtime home Atlantic Records, according to the Hollywood Reporter. Other than the fact that she asked to be released from her contract, nothing else is known of the split. Brandy has been with Atlantic since the start of her career; her four albums have sold more than 8 million units. She's said to be in talks with other labels. Brandy was last in the news this summer, when her marriage to music producer Robert Smith was revealed to be fake. (EXPRESS)

Sinbad Honors the Past While Looking to the Future

SINBAD hardly ever swears on stage, but he can appreciate those who have. "This is the thing about Lenny Bruce and Richard Pryor ... people that went that route. They believed in their convictions. They weren't cussing just to cuss. It was a time in America when it was uptight. They were pushing the uptightness of America," Sinbad told the San Antonio Express-News. But now: "There's not a word that hasn't been used. There's not a curse word that hasn't been touched. Edgy right now, to me, is being yourself." (AP)

The Boozier, Unshaven, Carousing Side of Bond

Pierce Brosnan thinks fellow Irishman COLIN FARRELL would be his ideal successor. Brosnan, 51, said several actors could ably fill his shoes in the Bond films, which he began in 1995 with "GoldenEye" and concluded with 2002's "Die Another Day." "But I'll give it to Colin Farrell. He'll eat the head off them all," Brosnan said following an entertainment awards ceremony Saturday in Dublin. Brosnan didn't specify any other actors. He also said he was discussing a possible collaboration with director Quentin Tarantino, who is considering making a film of the Bond novel "Casino Royale." (AP)

Even the Long Arm of The Law Can't Raise Caine

MICHAEL CAINE trounced JUDE LAW in a British poll released on Monday, Reuters reported. The survey, conducted for online DVD rental firm ScreenSelect.co.uk, asked roughly 2,000 people whether they preferred the remade "Alfie," starring Law, or Caine's 1966 version. More than 60 percent chose Caine. "Alfie" itself was voted the sixth-worst remake of all time. Another remake of a Caine film, "Get Carter," made the list as well. "Our research findings suggest that remakes don't always cut the mustard," observed Alex Chesterman, co-founder of ScreenSelect.co.uk. (EXPRESS)

A ceremony will follow Romeo's opening night at the Beau Rivage Resort & Casino in Biloxi, Miss., on Wednesday. In his show, Romeo performs Broadway-style tunes. ## Horoscope

By Stella Wilder

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) A reunion of sorts is favored, but you mustn't make the mistake of thinking that all will be forgotten that easily. Make apologies.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)

Challenges are likely to come from unexpected sources, but you have what it takes to face the most direct with confidence.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) It's up to you. And no one is going to step up to the plate for you in any sense. Don't get discouraged; opportunities lie ahead, too.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) Take what you can from even the most difficult situations, and you'll find yourself ahead of the pack — and ready for real success.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) Your reaction to what comes to you by surprise will tell others a great deal about what is hidden beneath the masks you present to others.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) A friend or loved one will be able to take advantage of your own good will. An enemy, however, may discover that you are formidable.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Something you're doing just for the thrill can prove more than profitable to you in a number of surprising ways before the day is out.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) It's a good day to get back to the basics, and it's important that you understand what is really motivating you right now. New goals are taking shape.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Don't become overbearing or preachy as you instruct others as necessary. Be supportive, encouraging and sympathetic.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) There is no point denying what others already know. Take the time to reflect on your motives before you begin changing your methods.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) What's more important than your own personal development? Nothing — and you must refocus your energies on learning one or two key lessons.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) You're heading in an important new direction, and those who support you will not be able to contain their excitement and enthusiasm.
